

Slideslow Farm: 1956 to 1989

Familiar sights at the time were the herd of pigs grazing amongst their shelters on the land bordering the Redditch carriageway- now the 18th fairway. It was then in 1987 that the family took the decision to try and diversify into golf. Ted Morris had initially tried to obtain planning permission for a golf course back in 1979 only to be thwarted by the Ministry of Agriculture on the back of their policies which restricted diversification. But now a window of opportunity appeared and the time felt right.
